Post Reports. The following booklets are part of a large State Department series that provides diplomats with an introduction to their host countries. They are also well suited to use by tourists, students, and armchair adventurers, however. They provide information on geography, climate, population, transportation, communications, mail, radio and TV, newspapers, health facilities, clothing, recreation and social life, currency, and more. Although most of this information is applicable to the general traveler, a small part of a typical Post Report is of use only to diplomatic personnel.
